

The Post-Standard Achievement AWARDS

In 1949 The Post-Standard began honoring women who exhibited outstanding achievement. That program was called The Post-Standard Women of Achievement Awards.

Forty-three years later in 1992, the program was expanded to recognize the achievements of men as well as women. It is now known as The Post-Standard Achievement Awards. We at The Post-Standard consider this change a vital reflection of our times. We thank you for your effort in helping us spotlight individuals who richly deserve public recognition.

Nominations are accepted all year for the program. Honorees are selected by a committee of Post-Standard staff members.
